Zero Waste

First day with my Zero Waste Hat.
Not even the lovely little man who asked how old I was and then before I could respond said "Are you 70? Or closer to 60?" could ruin my buzz today.
Ongaonga school rocks! The kids are awesome (even the one that thinks I am ... well, at that age I wouldn't be old, I'd be a classic) And what a gorgeous school!
Took the Year 1 and 2s on a 'Litter Treasure Hunt' and we struggled to find much! Awesome the kids take such pride in their surroundings!
And thank you to the awesome staff who put me at ease. The hardest thing now I get into the swing of things is sticking to 45 minute lessons!

Almost done my first week in my first school... I do feel sorry for the school, sometimes it is tricky to contain THE NEEN (and she is excitable).
BEST moment today - taking some stuff out to my car at lunchtime and some year 5-6ers saw me... "Neen! You are coming back after lunch to teach us aren't you?!" They were a bit worried NAWWWW! I LOVE THIS JOB!!!! "Yes guys, I am, and I'm bringing 300 of my closest friends with me!"
"We're getting worms!" they yelled.
LOL! This is just to much fun!
And Ongaonga school is AWESOME! I hope every Skool is as Kool!

We had a great time in the first week of this term participating in Zero Waste lessons with Neen Kennedy and Badminton sessions with Yongshi Xie from Sport HB. As you can see by the comments Neen put on the Sustainable Ewe Facebook page, she was impressed with our students and school. Yongshi had wonderful comments too which doesn't surprise us as we know how awesome our students are!
